"From SHTETL to SWING"

directed by Fabienne Rousso-Lenoir

This documentary uses unusual treatments to its archive material, making the past come alive. It recounts the story of a musical metamorphosis born in Russia when, between 1880 and 1924, 2.5 million Jews fled Eastern Europe and migrated to America. The music era in the USA included a rich variety of genres: jazz, Broadway, Yiddish theatre, ragtime, klezmer, Tin Pan Alley, swing and later, Hollywood talking movies—-all influenced by these immigrants.
